Abstract

Reading extensively in both one's native language and the target language (L1 and L2, respectively) is the most important factor in developing one's reading skills, as demonstrated by the findings of an investigation into the reading strategies and extensive reading practises of students of English as a foreign language (EFL). Learners have a strong desire to read more when they engage in extensive reading since it offers them rich background knowledge, awareness of language, and more. In addition to that, it lays the groundwork for quick reading, the development of reading strategies by students, and an enhanced capacity for predicting the context of sentences. It also serves as the foundation for rapid reading, the discovery of reading methods by learners, and increased context guessing ability.
